'They Will Kill Me,' Deserter Asks Asylum

VANCOUVER (CP) - Tuan Vu. 23, a South Vietnamese navy deserter, is about to be deported from Canada.

The ultimate result, he says, will be his

Vu has been living and working in Canada since October, 1970, after he left an American-South Vietnamese reciprocal training program in San Francisco.

He was ordered deported because be did not have valid passport or visa. He is free on bail, but an appeal was rejected by the Im-migration Appeal Board last month.

Although trained in electronics, Vu now is half-owner of a flower shop in Vancouver. He does not want to leave Vancouver.

"Almost all my life there is just war." he

"Outside of the army and navy — outside of the war — there is no life. This is the only place I can stay out of the war."

Technically, if deported, he faces a maximum of 20 years of hard labor. But in South Vietnam, hard labor means front-line fighting, he said, "with a gun behind you and a gun in front of you."

"They will kill me," Vu said. "That is

His lawyer, Stuart Rush, said deportation would be tantamount to being put in front of a firing squad. "If the other side doesn't kill you, the guards will."

A special appeal to federal Immigration Minister Bryce Mackasey was rejected, 'Ile says he can't do anything about it and he won't," said Rush.

The next step is to take an appeal to the deral court. While Vu is not hopeful, the appeal may serve to at least delay his deporta-

"One thing is clear, and that is that the Ottawa office of the immigration department is pushing this thing through," said Rush.

Vu is seeking either an indefinite stay of his deportation order, or processing of his application for landed imigrant status or grant of political asylum.

The only other possible alternative is to try to arrange for an orderly departure to another country.

Vu's case was appealed on two grounds: that of humanitarian considerations and that he would be punished for activities of a politi-cal nature and would suffer unusual hard-

Asked how he felt about the North Vietnamese Vu said: "They are my people. Everyone asks me if I am North or South Vietnamese, but it is all the same thing.

"I feel it is ridiculous to fight against my own people. If the Americans would leave it would be easy. There would be no fighting."

BOMB HUNT ABOARD QE2

LONDON (AP) — The defence ministry said today bombs are reported to have been planted aboard the Queen Elizabeth II at sea and that four bomb disposal experts were being flown out to mid-Atlantic to deal with them.

Unofficial reports in London said the captain of the big liner had been advised bombs were planted in New York, the ship's last port of call, and would explode if a huge ransom was not paid.

There are 1,400 passengers aboard the 65,000-ton vessel, the pride of the British merchant navy.

The Cunard Company, owners of the ship, immediately made contact with British defence ministry officials.

An RAF transport took off from Lyncham in Wiltshire heading out to the Atlantic.

The defence ministry said the plane carried four bomb disposal experts.

The BBC said a caller to Cunard's New York office said a bomb would explode at 9 p.m. tonight unless the ransom was paid.

WASHINGTON (WP) An "alarming" increase in cancer deaths among Blacks in America was reported Wednesday by Howard Uni-

Some cancer researchers, trying to explain similar statistics, have been looking at the increased number of tiny aspestos particles in city air, among other pollutants. Much of the asbestos come from building construction and destruction of old structures.
But this is only one possible cause among many. Possible cancer-causing substances are found on the job, in the home, on the street, in the air and in the form of countless chemicals in foods, cleaners and other products.

Federal health officials said

Wednesday that results of the Howard study are confirmed by recent tabulations of a

That survey showed that the principal cancer increase has occurred among black men, mainly in cancer of the pros-

Summing up the Howard results Wednesday, Drs. Ulrich K. Henschke and Jack E. -From 1949 to 1967, cancer death rates for non-whites 91 per cent of them black rose from 138 to 182 per

PLANES ATTACK

Meanwhile Hanoi Radio reported that "waves of American planes" today struck Hanoi, the port of Thanh Hoa, and the big rail and road centre of Bac Glang barely 50 miles from the border of Chies.

The broadcast which claimed five American planes broadcast which were shot down today fol-lowed reports by military spokesmen in Saigon that U.S., air force jets knocked out six bridges around North Viet-nam's southernmost port city of Dong Hoi in earlier attacks and turned the area into an inferno of exploding supplies

American naval strength off Vietnam increased steadily and a U.S. Navy spokesman said planes from the carrier USS Saratoga, which arrived recently, carried out their first strikes today. The planes hit Communist positions near beleaguered An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, and in the Mekong delta.

A South Vietnamese relief column moved to within 21/2 miles of An Loc today, making its biggest advance in six weeks, field reports said.

Moving behind hundreds of bombs dropped by jets from the Saratoga and from U.S. B-52 Stratofortresses, the South Vietnamese met no de-termined resistance from North Vietnamese forces, the field reports said.

The U.S. command confirmed an earlier report from South Vietnamese head-quarters that 300 North Viet-namese troops were killed by South B-52 strike two days ago southwest of An Loc.

The Opposition leader called a press conference to announce that under a government led by him any lands being used for a purpose other than originally intended when a Crown grant was made or a tree farm licence issued would be taken back by the Crown.

Barrett said he wanted to "warn the major forest com-panies" that "we will not tol-erate the misuse of their publicly granted privilege.

"If this means MacMillan Bloedel versus Dave Barrett, then so be it."

Barrett named only the MacMillan Bloedel company but said "any other com-pany" was also included.

Phil 'Knows Nothing' About Claim

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said today he knows nothing about statements that his department has blocked 860,000 worth of drug-user re-habilitation money needed by the Narcotics Addiction Foun-dation of British Columbia.

The statement came from foundation's executive director, Douglas Denholm, who said the federal govern-ment has agreed to pay half tife foundation's rehabilitation costs under the Canada Assistance Plan.

But Ottawa insists that the province approve of the spending and also share in it. Gaglardi said today he will ask his department officials about the situation today.

"I'm not aware of it — it's never been brought to my attention," he said when told of Denholm's statement.

Denholm said his appeals to the provincial government have met with "silence."

He said the province has been given all the information about the foundation's rehabilitation program and has inspected the premises but has not made a move to negotiate with Ottawa for the federal

If arrangements are worked out with the federal depart-ment of public works, the new berths will be an extension of the 165 now available at Fishermen's Wharf on Eric.

Walter Wamsley, the company's wholesale manager in Vancouver, said: "The suggestion was broached to us public works about six eks ago. We're looking at what they're suggesting. If we decide to go ahead with the plan we will have to move our wharf. There's nothing defi-nite beyond that point."

A Job for All

The appointment of Dr. Hugh Farquhar to the presidency of the University of Victoria should prove to be a popular as well as a wise one, not only on the campus but in the community as a whole. Since he assumed the top administrative office on an interim basis last February, Dr. Farquhar has demonstrated the benefit of his long familiarity with Victoria College and the University, as well as the value of his own personal characteristics, in tackling a type of job which has become notoriously difficult throughout the continent.

The sorry turbulence, at times reaching viciousness, which marked some of the opposition to Dr. Farquhar's predecessor, has subsided, and a much better climate has settled over the campus. It was overdue too, for the public was becoming seriously concerned about the attitudes and behavior exhibited in some student and faculty quarters, and general support for the university, both financial and institutional, was threatened. That support, whether practical or tacit, is essential for the development of UVic, just as the university in turn has a valuable contribution to make to the Greater Victoria community.

Dr. Farquhar has done much to estore confidence in the Gordon Head institution, and will do more. He has taken a firm position regarding the well-being of the university, and made clear that he expects all concerned to do everything possible to further the development and growth which are inherent in UVic.

Dr. Farquhar has accepted a challenge which many persons today would choose to avoid. But he has made a good start during the past preliminary months with his knowledgeable approach to the intricacies of a very difficult administrative task, and he deserves all the support that campus and community can provide.

This is a difficult period of

'Coming Up for Air'?

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan's decision not to stand for re-election when the provincial government next goes to the people invites inevitable speculation. At 55, after 20 years "total immersion" in British Columbia's Social Credit politics he would "like to come up for air for a while," though he intends to campaign for the party when it makes its anticipated bid this year.

The cryptic nature of Mr. Kiernan's comments automatically raises questions. He has not closed the door to future political activity and leaves the impression that he might wish merely to enjoy a sabbatical. Is he at least temporarily tired of the job? Or have developments made his position less attractive to him than it was at an earlier time?

His portfolios have been ones in which the public is vitally interested, with the result that he has been frequently on the firing line. It is to Mr. Kiernan's credit that he can now emerge, if not unscarred, at least with a substantial measure of popularity and personal regard. It has been widely assumed that many of his problems in regard to policy-making have derived from the one-man govern-

There is an obvious difference between Mr. Klernan's decision and that of his older colleague, Works Minister William Chant. And there is no indication, at this date, that he is moving, as did former Attorney-General Robert Bonner, into an entirely new field of activity.

mental structure in which he has had to work.

Whatever the reason - and it could be simple fatigue and a desire for air - the result confronts Mr. Bennett, if he is returned, with the task of finding another cabinet replacement from ranks which have not been notably rich in ministerial material.

transition for universities. It leaves no time for personal intrigues, or for intra-mural conflicts other than the healthful confrontations arising from scholarly differences. Dr. Farquhar over the past months has in effect appealed to his colleagues and to the student body for industry, responsibility and breadth of understanding. There could be no better basis on which to build any university.

Planning Ahead

It takes time for government to adjust its methods to new concepts and to new competitors. This is one important reminder from the annual conference of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities at Powell River.

A resolution calling on the Minister of Municipal Affairs to promote co-operation between regional districts and the province's resource departments "to help ensure the viability of the regional district concept" was passed.

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, chairman of the capital regional board, said that Mr. Campbell had abandoned attempts to get senior civil servants and regional boards together. Another delegate at the conference, Ald. George McKnight of Port Alberni, said it is "ludicrous" that planning objectives of the regional district planning boards should be ignored or made superfluous by the provincial government.

In addition to informal pressures to bring change, appropriate amendments of the Municipal Act could be introduced at the next session of the Legislature to ensure that the powers of the regional planning boards will be co-ordinated with those of affected provincial departments. Mr. Campbell, having been the creative force in the regional concept, should keep up the good work in furtherance of the regional district program.

Violence

Just what is happening to the movie industry today, or for that matter, our society? Are we entering an age of sadism. I wonder?

Recently certain Victoria theatres showed several films: one, a travelogue called Ball contained scenes of ... "adults revelling in cock fighting and cricket fighting," then another, Man in the Wilderness, that had the B.C. Censor's warning of "scenes of animal cruelshowed a buffalo being eaten alive by two wolves but not killed (hopefully partially simulated), and finally Walka-bout, supposedly an "exotic and exciting experience," but according to certain ple who saw it, a depressing picture good photography, much violence and more animal cruelty — unsimulated.

Next may be El Topo, not yet released in Canada but now doing business in the United States. A Mr. James Anderson from California wrote in the Saturday Review . . . that "much of the blood is real and belongs to animals that were slaughtered for the purpose . . . I counted seven or eight dismembered mules and donkeys . . . ravens whose heads were half blown off by blasting caps wired to their necks and a large number of rabbits killed by having their

"It turns my stomach to see the callous slaughter of mammals and birds included as a device to add a touch of 'realism.'

It turns my stomach, too, and I might add that I would guarantee that any persons defending such types of films for reasons at all (art, realism, storybrilliant photography, directing, etc., etc.) would change their learned opinion very fast if they were to become a helpless victim of similar treatment

I am disgusted and sickened at the prevalence of violence for its own sake, and animal cruelty in par tion pictures today. I am disgusted that humans would stoop so low as to capture for the sake of realism or whatever - or more plainly, to appeal to the sadistic streak in some people's natures in order to make a fast buck with the films. I am sickened when I realize the powerful influence that movies have on the public, and what may happen to our society if this sort of thing gradually becomes ac-

We are well aware that producers would soon discontinue making these movies if the money stopped rolling in.
If enough individuals refused to patronize these films, in turn persuading others to do the same, this would eventually happen. Reading movie reviews, letters to the editor in magazines and newspapers, advertisements, and talking to other people can inform us in advance of what to expect and what not to see.

Claims Distortion

Re: Weekend Magazine article
"Emergency Services — A Deadly Fall-

I wish to protest the cheap sensationalism exhibited in the above article published in Weekend and carried in the April 29 issue of The Victoria Daily

I am surprised that your newspaper through Weekend Magazine would allow the publication of such material that is obviously not much more than a free promotion piece for Mr. Grafftey's book 'Senseless Sacrifice'

While all levels of Canadian society, have been aware of the inadequacies of our emergency and ambulance services. this article distorts the facts and con tains a number of items that can only be described as inaccuracies.

Mr. Grafftey charges that "the medical profession has avoided contact with ambulance services, was jealous of ambulance attendants applying splints or stopping bleeding, rejected the concept the Ontario Hospital Services Commission's total community ambulance service, was too indifferent, too busy, or too lazy to do anything about inadequate ambulance services.'

truth. The C.M.A. and its provincial divisions, since at least the early 1950s, have annually berated our inadequate ambu lance services, promoted and en-couraged the development of total community and hospital-based ambulance services, called for better training proyes, publicly commended the O.H.S.C. program as an example of how such services can be organized and operated.

I would point out that the Chairman of the C.M.A.'s Emergency Services Committee, Dr. W. R. Ghent, directs the O.H.S.C. Ambulance Attendants Training Program and Dr. N. McNally, Direct tor of O.H.S.C.'s Emergency Health and Ambulance Services Division, has been an active member of that committee

The Ontario Medical Association sponsored an Ontario ambulance services survey in the early 1950's and has been an active supporter, and indeed one could almost use the term promoter, of the O.H.S.C. program. The British Columbia Medical Association has been especially active and vocal in this area. It is unfortunate that the credibility of an article on such an important subje must be questioned.

There is need for improvement in our emergency services - we need more community, co-ordinated ambulance services and better facilities and personnel within the hospital emergency departments. It is unfortunate that Mr. Grafftey and Weekend Magazine found it necessary or desirable to use exaggeration, sensational isolated cases and inaccuracles to make the point. The C.M.A. is sure it can speak for every physician in Canada when it says:

"Yes, we need better ambulance ser-

Expositors

It would take a lot of space to com-ment fully on Mr. Hutchison's latest column, "Rule by Men, Not Law," in your May 13 issue. As usual, the veteran commentator covers a good deal of territory and criticism of his work runs the risk of leaving out some salient feature. We cannot agree, however, with an idea that all Canadians vote for the person and not for the policy.

Hutchison's often repeated suggestion that few Candians understand political problems (they haven't the information) and that Mr. Trudeau does ("even a skilled expositor like Mr. Tru-deau cannot explain them") smells of a "mother knows best" philosophy, which if followed to its logical conclusion would mean the end of Democracy. If Mr. Trudeau is an excellent and skilled expositor as Mr. Hutchison states then we suggest that Mr. Hutchison has some information that the remainder of us have not. From up here in the bleachers a good many of us think that Mr. Trudeau is not only a poor and impatient expositor, after all "fuddle duddle" and other such remarks do not really answer questions, but that he knows a good deal ess about what he is doing than he ought to - if he is the great man Mr. Hutchi-Trudeau's attack on inflation demon strated a knowledge of political expediency, but very little of the real nature of the problem

We agree heartily with Mr. Hutchison that we live in a world of confusion, but what can be expected when we give oblique answers to straightforward questions? We also agree that the Canadian people will vote for someone they can trust but we do not agree that they have some instinctive wisdom in such matters. They have been fooled by skilled public relations campaigns but they are quite capable, even if Mr. Hutchison doesn't think so, of judging their prospective leaders on the basis statements made about policy. -H. E. F. Makovski, 3539 Plymouth Rd.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of May 18, 1912:

As the fund for the proposed new Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital grows from day to day and assumes propor-tions which promise well for the building of an up-to-date structure, the doom of the old building becomes more imminent. It will be with some regret, though, that many will see the old structure go down. It has served many as a medium through which they have been restored back to life and days of service, and it bas been within its walls that they have had the opportunity of testing the strength of those ministers of Life when Death strode starkly down the midnight premier two years ago, Robert Bourassa has toned down many of Quebec's demands which had a nationalistic character, preaching instead the virtues of cooperation with the federal government. His characteristic preference for con ciliation over confrontation has produced ome successes, such as the tentative agreement announced in March allowing Quebec to determine how federal baby bonus money earmarked for Quebec families will be distributed. However, there has been nothing close to the new dawn in federal-provincial relations which the premier predicted during his 1970 election campaign

The result has been a buildup of pressure on Mr. Bourassa, both from oppos tion parties and some influential members of his own cabinet, to revert to the more militant ways of his recent predecessors in the premier's office. It came to a head last week when letters of resignation were written by two senior-

Both Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay and Jean-Paul L'Allier, the communications minister who also held the civil service portfolio until he was replaced in the latter post on Friday, withdrew their resignations because of the gravity of the current labor situation. But, they made it very clear that they may leave for good once the crisis is

Premier Bourassa is now faced with the difficult decision about whether to adopt a more aggressive stance in his relations with Ottawa, or continue his present policy of "quiet negotiation" and the embarrassing departure of at least two ministers.

Mr. Castonguay's and Mr. L'Allier's frustration was aggravated beyond the point of endurance by the recent federal who boosted old-age pensions and made other social welfare changes without first consulting Quebec

It's not that Quebec is against giving more money to the elderly. What the premier and his social affairs minister objects it is that the contract of object to is that the increases are universal, going to everyone over 65 whether poor. The province is also concerned that the additional $2.88 monthly pension payment — costing an annual total of $125 million — widens the gap between aid available to those over and

Under the provincial Social Aid Act, for instance, a needy couple of 64 is eligible for welfare payments of $181 per month, financed jointly by Ottawa and Quebec. At age 65, however, the same couple is eligible for payments of $285, an increase of more than $100 a month.

Not only would Quebec like to improve the lot of people between 60 and 65 living in poverty, along with younger people as well, the government knows that the increased old-age pension will increase pressure on the province to boost its own assistance.

Such action isn't possible right now, for Mr. Bourassa has stated that the provincial economy would not be able to accept a higher rate of taxation for the time being. In addition to what is believed to be a growing resentment against the financial burden of welfare not only in Quebec but across North America - the government must keep the economy as competitive as possible with Ottawa to attract much-needed

Policy Considerations

The government's wage policy in the current dispute with the "common front" of 210,000 public and para-public employees points up how determined Mr. Bourassa is to avoid large tax hikes and the economy in a competitive position. In these days when image is so important we ought to be doing everything in our power to make the job of the Air Force even more glamorous. VANCOUVER (CP) - Mr. Justice Harry McKay re-served his decision Wednes-day on a Plumbers' Union application for a B.C. Supreme-Court ruling to declare the Construction Labor Relations Association's lockout illegal.

Pilots Sign Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) - The Vancouver (CP) — The 400 pilots employed by CP Air agreed Wednesday to a 14-month contract under which they will receive a fire-per-cent salary increase. Present salaries range from $850 a month for junior second officers to $3,000 a month

Almost half the amount, $17,800, is provided for park-ing facilities at East Sooke regional park, with parking lots at Pike Road and Anderson Cove to accommodate 75 and 25 cars respectively.

The committee agreed that tenders should be invited for the work, and if these prove unsatisfactory on cost or other grounds the work will be carried out by locally-recruited labor under regional staff supervision.

A sum of $6,000 is allocated 'essential studies" including an over-all development plan, ecological inventory and site planning at Witty's La-goon and a study of mining in-terests in East Sooke park.

Another $7,000 will pay for projects with a high labor content in all parks if the federal government's local initiatives program is extended. If it is not, the committee suggests that the money be spent on facilities at East provements to the Elk-Beaver Lake park road and $1,200 for providing temporary chem toilets at Coles Bay park.

Keep Records and Save!

By AL FORREST Times Business Editor

trades during 1972.

At income tax time next year, investment firms will make a search of their files to provide a complete record of trades — but it's going to cost. cost.

"If an investor is dealing with three or four investment firms it could run into quite a bit of money. Investors would be well advised to save as much data as possible on their trades."

How much will it cost if a person fails to keep or loses his stock trading records?

Victoria's investmenthouses are working on fee for-mulas based upon the amount of work involved in the search. In addition they are watching for further informa-tion from the federal taxation department as to what docu-mentation will be required and whether a standardized form will be devised.

Eventually it is hoped to have both standardized forms and similar rates for clients requesting a search of

BASED ON TIME

Neville Banner, manager of Bongard, Leslie and Co. Ltd., says his company has tentatively set rates on an hourly basis for searching trades made in previous years.

The proposed rate is $10 per hour of searching with a minimum charge of one hour. If the search took more than five hours, the client would be contacted for confirmation be-fore the bill went beyond $50. If the investor has kept his complete trading records he can save himself expenses of The searches will be con-

GOVERNMENT OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

TORONTO (CP) — An On-ario Securities Commission with the public was adjourned earing involving the licence until May 23.

Lawyers for the company, one of the best-known and oldest members of the Toronto Stock Exchange, told the second day of hearings Wednesday that the company had the impression that it was legal to sell shares to certain United States citizens, one of the matters the commission questions.

The commission ordered the hearings after it became known that some U.S. insiders were trading in shares of Kaiser Resources Ltd., through KRL Investments Ltd., a private company set up for that purpose. Ames was an underwriter

The hearing of A. E. Ames ident William Macdonald and sales superviser Ronald Gunn, is to determine the "fitness for continued registration" of the firm.

Arthur Pattillo, lawyer for Ames, told the hearing Wednesday he would establish that Ames was under the impression that it was legal to sell the Kaiser shares to KRL.

He said that he would show that Macdonald "although he signed the prospectus . . . had nothing whatever to do with the share business."

Macdonald in June, 1969, re-Macdonald in June, 1969, received a letter from Jack Ashby, vice-chairman of the parent Kaiser Steel Corp. of the U.S. indicating that U.S. executives of the Kaiser group would be buying a portion of the share issue.

Banks Must Shed Cautious Attitudes

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Canadian banks will have to shed their cautious, conservative attitudes and start lending cheaper money to industry to finance exports, a seminar for bank managers was told.

Two representatives of the Canadian Export Association told the bankers they will have to be more co-operative and show more initiative in helping exporters to finance their sales.

E. Cauley Hill of Goderich, Ont., vice-president and general manager of Dominion Road Machinery Co. Ltd. said bankers "must step out from beneath a cloud of conservatism and ceution."

F. Irvine Rychman, credit manager of Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. told the bankers they face increasing competition from foreign-owned banks which are actively soliciting busi-ness in Canada.

The foreign and other financial institutions are often more willing to negotiate loans with Canadian exporters than are chartered and other banks based in Canada, Ryckman said.

Seaspan to Buy Yorke

Seaspan International has reached preliminary agreement to acquire F. M. Yorke and Son Ltd.; a company which has been operating truck train ferries, railway barges and tugboats in Ontario and British Columbia for 50 years.

ITT Sells Two Subsidiaries

NEW YORK (AP) - International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. says it has reached an agreement 1 sell two in-surance subsidiaries in the first major divestiture under its 1971 anti-trust settlement with the U.S. justice department.

The units to be sold are ITT Hamilton Life Insurance Co. and its subsidiary TTT Life Insurance Co. of New York. The sale is subject to approval of the justice department, regulatory authorities and directors of the companies involved.

The companies are to be sold to National Liberty Corp., and Valley Forge, Pa., company which owns three insurance operations. The price is to be based on the net worth of the ITT operations as of June 30.

The coupe fits a family with three sprouting children and the sedan will carry five people of almost any size in day-long comfort."

He tried to get a night sitting so the veterans bill could be considered and was blocked by Conservative Leader Jacques Flynn, who objected that the government was bending Senate hours.

Senator Flynn said the bills can be dealt with in regular hours. Approval could come as late as next Tuesday because nothing could be done about the cheques during the long Victoria Day weekend

Flats Proposal

VANCOUVER (CP) - City council has received a consul-tant's report outlining a $150 million recreational and residential development for the False Creek Flats area. The proposal would replace the present industrial slum with housing for 6,000 people plus recreational facilities. Council called for city staff, within 90 days of the end of the civic strike, to prepare details on how to start the development.

All were ruled out of order because they touched on the government prerogative of dealing with financial matters but procedural debate on them took up most of Wednesday afternoon.

The government opposed them all, saying they were out of order and would cost millions.

The Commons sat until 6:30 p.m., 30 minutes past the regular adjournment hour, in an attempt to get third reading but there were too many speakers left then and the Conservatives and Social Crediters refused to sit longer.

Mr. Baldwin and P. B. Rynard (PC-Simcoe North) at-tempted several amendments to increase the basic pension to about $90 a month from the $82.88 provided for under the government proposal that ties it to annual cost-of-living increases. They sought to have the bill sent back to commit-

Social Credit sought a $200 basic pension, reduction of the age of eligility to 60 from 65 and payment of pensions to spouses of pension recipients regardless of age.

Air of 'Doom and Gloom' Seeped Into Convention

I recently attended the annual B.C. Wildlife Federation convention in Richmond, and was appalled at the "doom-and-gloom" feeling wich prevailed.

I was equally appalled by the visual lack of support from ember clubs to the annual meeting.

Registration showed that only a quarter of the member clubs throughout the province were represented. Vancouver Island fish and wildlife clubs were conspicuously absent with only Victoria, Nassimo, Parksville, Campbell River and Gold River sending delegates from the 20-plus Island clubs.

Was your class represented? "If not — why not?" is a question that all individual members should be asking at their next general-meeting.

Many resolutions with far reaching consequences for B.C. hunters and anglers were adopted by the delegates and I will be reporting on these in a later column.

Certainly of major consequences however, was the unanimously adopted resolution calling for greenstrips to be left along all waterways in the province. The resolution called for a minimum of 50 feet where topography permitted.

Various discussions with major forest company representatives did indicate a growing awareness of their responsibility as corporate citizens for multiple land-use concepts. These include green strips for fish, wildlife, recreational and aesthetic values as well as serious attempts to implement this often ban-nered but never accomplished land-forest management. Certainly in the forefront on Vancouver Island are B.C. Forest Products and MacMillan Bloedel.

However, even though these companies are showing their responsibility in this area, the B.C. Forest Service and in particular the policy of the Vancouver Forest District is opposed to Green belts are a must if we are to protect the integrity of streams. But, as the majority of our Island streams and waterways are under tree farm licences and as the B.C. Forest Service and the fossilized Vancouver Forest District have the final authority, anglers, hunters and the public must make their combined voices heard.

Considerable interest was generated at the convention over Considerable interest was generated at the convention over the impending destruction of the upper White River watershed. A resolution presented by the Steelhead Society of B.C. called for wild river status under the "Wild River Report" as present-ed by first vice-president Ed Mankelow. This was passed unani-mously — even after much discussion by company represent-

At this time it would be wise to suggest that the company consider the various classifications for "wild rivers" as stated in this report and meet with the B.C. Wildlife Federation for possible "Scenic River" application to the upper White River

The minister of recreation and conservation gave a bland convention speech. As the politician, he saved the droppings for the end where he announced scattergun projects visual to the public eye to promote Social Credit votes, but Lilliputian in face of the fish, wildlife and environmental Goliath.

Aside from an auxilliary core of conservation officers parading throughout the province, the Island is slated to receive the magnanimous total of $12,500 for a waterfowl nesting

The feeling of all sportsmen on the value of this minister to the environment and the needs of fish and waldlife habitat and management is best expressed by the resounding vote by the delegates asking for his resignation.

Tom O'Keefe, president of the Alberta Federation, in his address to the delegates asked, "Is this a doomsday or revival meeting?" For the delegates it was a renaissance as they unanimously endorsed the "Federation 75" report. This report will re-vitalize the fish and wildlife movement in the province as it calls for a full re-organization of the B.C. Wildlife Federa-

The camp, which began with two aborigines spending the night on the lawns of Parliament on Jan. 26, has grown to nine protesters and has become something of an institution, complete with garden parties, speeches and confrontations with politicians.

For a time, the government appeared anable to do anything about the sit-ins. But on May II, Interior Minister Ralph Hunt said the government would introduce legislation to ban the encampment.

Continued Importance of U.S. Policy Seen Over-Shadowing Canadian Firms

LeDain Drug Report Angers Police Chiefs

Victoria-area police chiefs were sharply critical today of recommendations announced in Ottawa by the LeDain Royal Commission on drug doing away with penalties for simple possession of mari-juana and hashish.

"Thank heaven its only a recommendation and not the law of the land," Victoria Police Chief Jack Gregory said. "It was not entirely unex-pected, in that it follows the policy of permissiveness so evident in this (federal) gov-

"The tendency towards the I'll-do-what-I-want philosophy is unfortunate, because it doesn't take into account the effects of that philosophy on others," Peterson said.

"Woman's place was in the home ... Training her mind would only make her dissa-tisfied to be wife and mother" were attitudes she ran into in graduate school, said Dr. Blanchard. Authorities could, and did, make it tough for her to get a PhD.

Garbage something most Canadians forget about as soon as it hits the trash can is becoming a major and expensive prob-

Canadians in a normal day leave an average of four or five pounds of waste each.
And the amount is growing.

Last year, Canadians discarded 700,000 oid cars, 10 million used tires, 2.8 billion bottles, 4.8 billion cans, three million tons of paper, nine million tons of industrial waste and home garbage, and 330 million tons of waste rock and ash.

Old methods of disposal are becoming in-adequate to handle the increasing amount of waste and city officials are finding them-selves hard-pressed for methods of disposal.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows some cities studying new, and in some instances radical, means of dealing with the problem.

Metropolitan Toronto's unionized workers went on strike April 10 in a dispute over wages, bringing to a halt all collection of garbage and refuse disposal in the city until May 10. Residents packed garbage in plastic bags and took it to collection areas set aside in city parks.

April 27, leaving the city without garbage pickup, municipal maintenance crews and a number of other services.

Major Cost

The major cost of current disposal meth-is — landfill and incineration — is for collection and transportation.

Jean Arpin, director of waste disposal for Montreal, says 60 to 70 per cent of the city's $7-million budget for garbage disposal is used to cover collection and transporation costs.

Ross Clark of the Toronto works commission says the collection and disposal of garbage in Toronto is "one of the biggest consumers of tax money, except for education."

Paper and glass containers already are being collected in many major cities for recycling on a regular basis.

The Quebec government, under the auspices of Environment Minister Victor Gold-loom is preparing a white paper on garbage disposal, recycling and pollution control. The report is expected to be ready in June.

Erik J. Jensen, of the Alberta Research Council, has designed a system of garbage removal using a network of pipelines. Car-bage would be encased and then pumped through the pipeline at speeds up to 60 miles an hour to outlets outside a city.

In British Columbia, the provincial government has instituted a program to rid the province of junk cars through the use of two mobile auto crushers. The crushers travel about the province crushing old cars for recycling by smelters.

In Vernon, B.C., last year, the city opened a spray irrigation plant using liquid waste to irrigate land which previously was "only fit for sagebrush." There now are 80 acres of alfalfa and 70 acres of grassland under irrigation. The project involves rumping secondary. tion. The project involves pumping secondary Municipalities across the country use dif-ferent methods of collecting and disposing of their trash. But all have one thing in com-mon — they are expensive.

St. John's, Nfid., spends about $655,000 a year to collect the 31,200 tons of garbage its residents discard each year. Disposal is at a landfill site near the city.

Charlottetown collects about 5,200 tons of garbage annually at a cost of about $100,000. The garbage is burned.

Halifax which burns its garbage at an in cinerator, spends about $800,000 a year to collect the 90,000 tons of trash.

Saint John, N.B., employs 70 men to collect and dispose of the city's garbage, at a cost of $600,000 a year. About 75 per cent of the trash is used as sanitary landfill and the remainder is burned.

Regina last year collected 64,000 tons of trash at a cost of about $184,261. Revenue from charges to commercial firms and charges to vehicles entering landfill areas amounted to $206,729.

Edmonton collected 126,931 tons of waste in 1971 at a cost of $14.05 a ton.

William Warton, of the city's sanitation department, says disposal was by the landfill method.

The filled sites are reclaimed for parkland. We even put a ski hill on one.

The city also operates a "transfer station" where garbage is screened magnetically for metals before it is crushed and trucked to the landfill sites.

Tons of Waste

Calgary spent an estimated $3.1 million in 1971 collecting and disposing of its 144,000 tons of waste. The city has four landfill sites, three of which are inside the city limits.

The Greater Vancouver Regional District began an 18-month study of garbage collection and disposal last fall. The amount collected in the Greater Vancouver area totals 550,000 tons annually. Most of the trash now is used for landfill. The City of Vancouver is studying other methods of disposal such as studying other methods of disposal such incineration, grinding, bailing and crushing.

Premier Bennett is wasting money promoting the tourist trade when the money could be better spent in a convention centre for the Victoria area, Victoria Real Estate Board president Eric Charman said today.

He called upon the provincial government to divert tourist promotion funds for construction of a convention centre in the capital city. "And the four local munici-relling among themselves and come to an agreement on operating the centre for the benefit of the whole region," Charman said.

He noted in an interview that the Social Credit govern-ment of Premier Manning in Alberta had given convention centres to both Edmonton and Calgary as presents.

Meanwhile, Premier Benmet spends money to send de-legations to California to build up Victoria's tourist trade when what the city needs is "The truth of the matter is that we have more tourists than we can handle some years during the 60-day season. And the provincial government continues to spend money to bring more tourists here when what we need here when what we need more is conventions," he said.

Chairman said that Victoria is ideal as a convention centre from all points of view except for facilities for meetings.

The only way to bring visi-tors to the city in the tourist-off-season is to build up con-vention trade and a convention centre is vital, he said.

Premier Bennett has shown great deal of interest in the capital region but hasn't given the city what it needs most, he said,

Money for tourist pro Money for tourist promo-tion, meanwhile, was being misspent. Besides trips to Ca-lifornia, the provincial gov-ernment is offering tourist promotion grants to Esqui-malt, Oak Bay, Victoria and Sagnich.

Rather than fragmenting the grants, the province should build a convention to the provincial government to get the ball rolling.

A convention centre has been talked about for Victoria for many years, with the latter together and make a joint presentation along these lines on the joint-financing basis with provincial, federal and Victoria funds.

This proposal has been shelved.

CANADA CHOICE, CANADA GOOD

Opposition leader Dave Bar-rett says he wants a public explanation of why Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Camp-bell has "interfered" for the second time on local planning decisions connected with the Wildwood Batates and estate decisions connected wath the Wildwood Estates real estate

The first time Campbell interfered on behalf of Wildwood Estates was in the Okanagan-Similkameen district, after local citizens had objected to a development

CALGARY (CP) — Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said Wednesday the question of royalties and their impact on his province's treasury has been over-emphasized.

A Father's Advice on Sex

Emeritus Consultant of Medicine, Mayor Clinic And Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayor Founda

"Dear Daughter, An Enlightened Father's Frank and Startling Advice on Sex," by Martin Sanders, is written from a different point of view than most books on sex.

As we all know, many parents do not want their children to be taught anything about sex. They would be horrified if anyone were to tell their teen-agers how to avoid having a much unwanted child. Mr. Sanders (who is writing under an assumed name, and is actually a nationally famous novelist who has had several best-aellers published) teels that it is important for a girl to understand sex. He feels that it is unrealistic for parents to hang on to the belief tist, their youngsters will not have sexual experiences, and he thinks it better that they know how to protect themselves against some of the hazards of ignorance or half-knowledge about sex that can lead to pregnancy and venereal disease, as well as emotional problems and hurt.

Naturally, many people will be horrified that a father would talk to his daughter frankly about pornography, or about how to please a man sexually, about abortion and contraception, and even about such modern practices as group sex.

He talks about some of the problems of being a mistress, and he has some good advice for his daughter once she becomes a wife. For example, he points out that "the burden of keeping the family intact does fall on the woman," and regarding the matter of keeping her husband faithful to her, he says, "While the blood is still on the bridal bouquet — and for some time afterward—they probably don't have to worry too much.

But when sex gets to be "old hat" the warning lights should begin to flash. When a woman takes the trouble for other men that she used to take for her husband, then a couple is not far from the acrimony that precedes the alimony."

from the aerimony that precedes the alimony."

We try to prepare our children for life and the many dangers of living through education. Why shouldn't we prepare them for the dangers that are associated with too early unmarried sex, which so many youngsters get into? Anyone who won't have "the horrors" over some frank and honest talk about sex will enjoy this body.

Martin Sanders taiks so frankly, and tens so much that his daughter — and many a young girl — should know. He tells his daughter what she had better not do, and he tells her what she will probably need to know if she wants to be happy and fulfilled and healthy in her sex life and her relationships with men.

KNIT & CHAT

By MAY E. MacLEAN

Now is the time to make a poncho as a gift for a young miss, and I have directions for four on my Leaflet No. 7191 — three are knitted and one is crocheted. All would make excellent gifts, or why not let them make their own as a school or club project? The instructions are very simple to follow, and the sizes given are for four years through to ten years. Knitted headbands for mother and daughter, both are on Leaflet No. 6865H, they are another gift idea that a young miss can attempt herself, and these would be lovely for their friends, or where a small gift is needed for an adult.

If they like to knit doll clothes, Leaflet No. 6809 has knitted fashions for teen-age dolls. There is an eight-piece mix and match knitted wardrobe to delight the heart of all little girls, for 13, 15 and 17-inch dolls, all on Leaflet No. 12-69. Now is the time to make a poncho as a gift for a dolls, all on Leaflet No. 12-69.

For young ladies with very long hair, there is a crochet chignon cap, which is very quickly made and looks tres chic and elegant especially with the addition of a few pearls and sequins. The instructions are on Leaflet No. 7054.

on Leaflet No. 7054.

Crochet padded coat hangers are the thing. They add a very real touch of luxury to the clothes closet, and just nothing slips off these hangers! Instructions for three coat hangers are on Leaflet No. 7056.

Leaflet No. 7050 has directions for three decorator throw cushions in crochet, two round and one square. If you don't crochet, there is a knitted one on Leaflet No. 6731.

No. 6731.

What better way is there to personalize your home than through the addition of little decorator items that you have made yourself. These little crochet mats are made in motifs, so that you can work as many as you wish, and make the mats to fit your individual pieces of furniture.

I think there is nothing so simple as making these motifs, then joining them together. The crochet seems to go so fast, and you always seem to make the time to crochet just one more!

This is the first time the finals, which began in 1967, have been held in Victoria.

Nip Off the Tips To Encourage Growth

Fuchsias regained popularity many years ago when their use was found for hanging in patios and on shady terraces.

Gardeners keep the old plants over winter with varying success according to ingenuity and accommodation available.

Ideally, strong young shoots, three to four inches long are taken from the old plants in early April (earlier if a slightly heated greenhouse is used). After rooting, each cutting is potted singly and kept growing steadily in a temperature between 50 and 60 degs. F tween 50 and 60 degs. F.

Equally important with temperature is the need for strong light. This means unobstructed light from the sky, preferably from all angles. Sunlight is not necessary, but during April and early May will certainly do no harm to fuch-

Now growth is more rapid, and the plants must be shifted to four or five-inch pots before being rootbound.

At the same time, every tip should be nipped off to encourage more growths. Only if well branched will fuchsias give the abundant blooming you see in professional baskets. The pinching of the growth is almost a daily task since you are sure to miss one or two each time. Continue until about June 15 when most early fuchsia varieties may be allowed to set flower buds.

Late bloomers must be pinched until about July 15. At the same time, get your plants accustomed to being outdoors. Whether you have a shelter for them or not, they must be gradually hardened-off to wind movement and the cooler night temperatures. Don't leave them out if high 30s is predicted; nor in a gale force wind.

At the October end of the season, you will be surprised

At the October end of the season, you will be surprised how your fuchsias wink at the weather, going unharmed for weeks until cool late fall prevents further bud formation.

All this is only possible if you care for the plants now.

At each repotting, and in the final basket or patio tub, use humusy garden soil. Add screened leatmold or two-year-old cow manure to garden soil if not enough compost is avail-able.

able.

Water whenever necessary, using the prescribed weak solution of Alginure alternately with liquid whale fertilizer. Later, as blossoming and hot weather combine to a need for more frequent watering, maintain the alternate feedings.

On really hot summer days, you will need to pour a quart or two of water into each fuchsia pot, tub or basket twice daily even though it is in a shaded position. The foliage gives off moisture, and when the soil becomes dry, there is no replacement.

Fuchsias respond dramatically to this treatment; without it you have simply fuchsias with a few flowers for a short

In the Life Masters Pairs Championships of 1971, a psychic bid that was made by our East player could have given her an excellent score on the deal. But, not being clairvoy-ant, she retreated to the suit. which her partner had bid. Sitting East was one of our nation's finest players, Edith Kemp, of Miami Beach. North South vulnerable North deals.

OA7432 4] EAST SOUTH

$ A K 8 3 2 The bidding:

Opening lead: King of O.

Had East passed South's double of two spades, she would have gone down seven tricks, making only one trick, dummy's ace of trumps. This would have cost her 1300 points, a fine sacrificial result (on a relative basis) when one considers that North-South had a lay-down contract at six spades; which would have netted them 1430 points (trick score of 180; 500 points for a vulnerable game; and 750 points for a vulnerable small and ran to three diamonds.

But, as is rather obvious, East just couldn't stand play-ing at two spades, doubled, and ran to three diamonds.

From this point on, the North-South bidding was "peculiar," to say the least, and the six-heart contract uitimately arrived at was a very poor one. Its fulfillment necessitated (among other things) a 3-3 division of the six outstanding hearts. Mathasix outstanding hearts. Mathematically, this division fig-

West's opening lead of the diamond king was captured by dummy's ace, South discarding the deuce of clubs. Then came the jack of clubs, covered by East's queen, and taken by South's ace. A low-club was then ruffed with the board's seven of hearts, after which the four of spades was led, South putting up his king. Upon winning the trick with his ace, West came back with the diamond queen, which the diamond queen, which South ruffed with his jack.

A third club lead was now ruffed with dummy's eight of hearts, and the nine of trumps was led to declarer's ace. The king and queen of trumps now picked up the missing pieces. The rest of the tricks were declarer's.

And so a lucky South, by fulfilling his six-heart con-tract, obtained the same score (1430 points) that most of the other North-South players obtained by reaching the proper contract of six spades. It is things such as this that makes one wonder at times if there is any justice.

Victoria-area police chiefs were sharply critical today of recommendations announced in Ottawa by the LeDain Royal Commission on drug

The commission suggested doing away with penalties for simple possession of mari-juana and hashish.

"Thank heaven its only a recommendation and not the law of the land," Victoria Police Chief Jack Gregory said.

If they do, a time may have too much going for them, but they do receive a few merciful dispensations. One is that their children, unless they happen to be real little blabbermouths, report only the merest fraction of what befalls them when they are out from under the paren-

Parents are constantly being told by one authority or who have never been on the firing line in the wars of love — that they should know at all times where their children are and what they're doing.

But the experts fail to provide adequate guidelines for those who might be tempted to take their advice at face value. They don't allow for the workings of the child-mind, or the habit fate has of poking a finger into even the most carefully-organized of mankind's works.

As a parent of children now grown, I suggest that the best one can accomplish is to bring 'em up right, teach them while they're teachable, and hope that by some mira-

Woman Dead After Hijack

TEL AVIV (AP)—An Israeli woman passenger, shot in the head when Israeli troops stormed aboard a hijacked Belgian airliner, died of brain damage today in a Tel Aviv hospital after lingering in a coma for more than eight days.

A hospital spokesman said Miriam Holzber Andersen, 22, an Israeli citizen married to a Norwegian medical student, died just before noon.

Mrs. Andersen's death raised the hijack fatality toll to three.

Two Arab guerrillas holding the Sabena jetliner at gunpoint last Tuesday were killed when Israeli troops disguised as airline mechanics broke into the captive plane to rescue 97 hostages aboard.

Why Canada Worries About Its Garbage Problem

Garbage — something most Canadiana forget about as soon as it hits the trash can is becoming a major and expensive problem for urban centres across the country.

Canadians in a normal day leave an average of four or five pounds of waste each. And the amount is growing.

Last year, Canadians discarded 700,000 old cars, 10 million used tires, 2.8 billion bottles, 4.8 billion cans, three million tons of paper, nine million tons of industrial waste and home garbage, and 330 million tons of waste rock and ash.

Old methods of disposal are becoming inadequate to handle the increasing amount of waste and city officials are finding themselves hard-pressed for methods of disposal.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows some cities studying new, and in some instances radical, means of dealing with the problem.

Two cities were beset with other prob-

Metropolitan Toronto's unionized workers went on strike April 10 in a dispute over wages, bringing to a halt all collection of garbage and refuse disposal in the city until May 10. Residents packed garbage in plastic bags and took it to collection areas set aside in city parks.

April 27, leaving the city without garbage pickup, municipal maintenance crews and a number of other services.

Major Cost

The major cost of current disposal methods — landfill and incineration — is for collection and transportation.

Jean Arpin, director of waste disposal for Montreal, says 60 to 70 per cent of the city's $7-million budget for garbage disposal is used to cover collection and transporation costs.

Ross Clark of the Toronto works commission says the collection and disposal of gar-bage in Toronto is "one of the higgest con-sumers of tax money, except for education." Toronto, which spends $33 million annual-ly for garbage collection and disposal, has tside the city.

Landfill, the most widely-used method of waste disposal, involves dumping garbage and covering it with earth. The system, however, is not without faults. Decaying garbage produces methane gas and there is the danger of explosion. There is also the danger of water pollution from rain water draining through the landfill site into nearby lakes

Incineration of garbage has raised the wrath of crusaders against air-pollution. In most cities only certain types of garbage now

Recycling Answer

Many experts believe recycling eventually will eliminate much of the country's waste disposal problem. Recycling, basically, is the conversion of waste material into useful products.

Paper and glass containers already are being collected in many major cities for recycling on a regular basis.

The Quebec government, under the auspices of Environment Minister Victor Goldloom is preparing a white paper on garbage disposal, recycling and pollution control. The report is expected to be ready in June.

Erik J. Jensen, of the Alberta Research Council, has designed a system of garbage removal using a network of pipelines. Garbage would be encased and then pumped through the pipeline at speeds up to 60 miles an hour to outlets outside a city.
